Weather policy: Musicians cannot play outdoors in rain or drizzle, even if under a canopy. Final decision as to whether to play outdoors due to inclement (rainy) weather belongs to the musicians. The reason for this policy is that water is extremely damaging to instruments. Your ensemble will come with many thousands of dollars worth of instruments and equipment. If the bridal party decides to have the ceremony outdoors, despite inclement weather while the musicians decline to play outdoors, the deposit and balance for rehearsal (if the rehearsal attendance option has been selected) is forfeited and the musicians expect to be paid half of the wedding balance for their time. The musicians come prepared to deal with sun, wind and bugs.
